Rain damage, poor quality of produce push up prices of onions & tomatoes

PARTHA SARATHI BISWAS

PUNE, OCTOBER 18

PRICES OF onions and tomatoes have seen a steady but sharp rise in the last couple of months. After heavy rain in September and October extensively damaged market-ready crops, arrivals and quality of produce have been hit, pushing up prices.

This is the first time this year when vegetables have seen a good price rally in both the wholesale and retail markets.

Since the end of August. heavy rain in Maharashtra and Karnataka has caused extensive damage to crops that were planted in June or July. Heavy showers in September and early October saw the same crop sustaining more damage just when farmers were getting ready to harvest their produce post Diwali.

Farmers had also reported damage to their stocked produce, harvested in April-May and known as rabi or unhali kanda. The overall availability of onions had started dipping since end of September.

Data from the website of Ministry of Food, Public Distribution and Consumer Affairs show that retail prices of both onion and tomatoes have increased significantly in the last one month. Onion prices in Delhi, which cost Rs 33/kg in September, has since then touched Rs 47/kg in the national capital.

The price escalation has been steeper in case of tomatoes, with Delhi markets now retailing the kitchen staple at Rs 59/kg, compared to Rs 28/kg a month ago. In some places across India, onion prices have touched or crossed Rs 50/kg while tomato prices are nearing Rs 60/kg.

At Lasalgaon's wholesale market in Niphad taluka of Maharashtra's Nashik district, the average traded price of onions has been rising since the third week of September. The prices, which for most part of the year were around Rs 1,500-

1,600/quintal, have breached Rs 3,300/quintal.

Suresh Deshmukh, a commission agent operating out of Dindori taluka in Nashik, said new arrivals were also of poor quality. "Such onions do not have much market value and the only tradable onion now is the stored onion, which farmers are offloading," he said.

The National Cooperative Agricultural Marketing Federation had tasked MahaFPC with procuring and storing 1.82 lakh tonnes of onions as buffer stock. MahaFPC has so far offloaded 50 per cent of the stock, with the rest scheduled to be sold by November 15. At present, MahaFPC is delivering to markets in Mumbai, Kanpur, Patna, Ranchi, Chennai, Bijapur and Lucknow. Sources said the supply of onions was likely to be hit further once MahaFPC stock was over.

In case of tomatoes, average traded price at Karnataka's Kolar market has been over Rs 3,000-Rs 3,500/quintal. Traders in Kolar pointed out that September rains had caused damage to the crop in the area.

"The present trend is expected to continue till end of December. Prices are also going to increase as demand increases after the Covid-19 restrictions ease out," said Deshmukh.

next crushing season? One of the biggest problems facing cane growers from Maharashtra and Karnataka is the damage caused to standing crop due the floods. Such cane has to be harvested at the earliest so the cane conclave would have to take a decision about any movement keeping that in mind. Our own estimations show that along the border areas of Maharashtra and Karnataka, nearly 10 lakh tonnes before cane growers ahead of

What are the main issues of cane have sustained damage in some form of the other. The government has not come to the aid of these farmers in any way so we have to ensure these farmers do not lose out financially.

Farmers are confused about which political party is really

talking for them: Raju Shetti

The second big question before the cane grower is the decision of many mills to pay the FRP (Fair and Remunerative Price) in installments. This is completely illegal and will be an important issue in the conclave.

You have recently concluded a tour of all the cane-growing areas of the state. What are the main concerns at the ground level?

The biggest issue before cane farmers is the way in which mills are using cane registration forms to take their consent for part payment of FRP. Farmers are coerced into this without their knowledge and in some cases the mills threaten not to harvest cane if farmers do not sign the form. During my tour, cane farmers raised this matter repeatedly. They pointed out that cane growers are unable to get advantage of the zero interest farm loan schemes, given the fact that their repayment happens after a year - the crop itself stays on the field for 14-18 months. Now, if the FRP is paid in installments, why should the farmers not be allowed to repay their loans also in installments?

Farmers and farm laws have been at the forefront of politics, both in the state and at the Centre. What is the political atmosphere among farmers in the state?

Cane growers in the state are in a fix about which political party really talks about them. Niti Aayog, the central planning body, had first proposed legalising payment of FRP in three installments. Back in the state, the strongest support of this move has come from Sharad Pawar, the supposed architect of the Maha Vikas Aghadi government. Farmers are confused about who is really talking for them.

Four arrested for 'illegally selling cardiac stimulant'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE PUNE, OCTOBER 18

The PUNE City Police has arrested four persons, including two gym trainers and an MBA graduate, for alleged illegal sale of Mephentermine Sulphate Injection, a cardiac stimulant that is abused as a performance enhancer by sportspersons.

The police have seized more than 200 vials of the drug allegedly from the four suspects, who were arrested in an action conducted in coordination with the Food and Drug Administration.

Officials of Bibvewadi police received a tip-off on October 16 that a man was trying to sell performance enhancers without valid licence or adequate prescription. The police team initially arrested a certain Paresh Renuse (33) and allegedly seized from him six bottles of the Mephentermine Sulphate Injection.

According to police, Renuse works a gym trainer. After the seizure of the Schedule H drug, the police informed FDA officials. An offence was registered under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 and relevant sections of the Indian Penal Code. In subsequent searches, 37 more vials of the injection were recovered from Renuse, police said.

After interrogating Renuse, two more persons, Praveensingh Bhati (23), who works at a medical store and Akshay Sambhaji Wanjale (26), who works as a gym trainer, were arrested, police said. At least 160 more vials of the Mephentermine Sulphate Injection and a car were recovered from the duo, police said. Working on more leads, the police arrested Shaunak Sankpal (28), an MBA graduate and seized from him eight more vials of the injections.

Assistant Inspector Praveen Kalukhe said, "Mephentermine Sulphate Injection is a cardiac stimulant generally prescribed for low blood pressure. It has been observed that the drug is often abused as a performance enhancer by sports persons, especially bodybuilders. Its overdose can prove fatal. Of the four arrested, two are gym trainers. We are now probing how and from where these suspects procured this Schedule H drug in this quantity."

77-yr-old man duped of Rs 59,200

Pune: A 77-year-old man was duped of Rs 59,200 by a fraudster who stole the senior citizen's debit card on the pretext of helping him. The incident took place on October 15 at Pimple Gurav. The victim, Raghunath Patil, is a resident of the same area.

Police said Patil had gone to an ATM run by the State Bank of India where the fraudster approached him and offered to help in getting a mini statement from the machine. The fraudster then swiped the complainant's card and got the mini statement of his bank account. However, he then cheated the complainant by returning another ATM card along with the mini statement.

BJP remains silent on Pankaja Munde's criticism, NCP says she 'highlighted facts'

said, "Wait and see."

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE PUNE, OCTOBER 18

AFTER BIP national secretary Pankaja Munde criticised leaders of her own party for repeatedly stating that the Maha Vikas Aghadi government will fall, the NCP has praised Munde for "highlighting the fact" while the BJP continued to remain silent.

At the annual Dussehra rally in her hometown of Beed, Munde had said, "While the leaders of the opposition are repeatedly saying that MVA government will fall, the ruling party leaders are insisting that the government will last its full term. This should stop. Both the opposition and the ruling party members should instead talk about the problems faced by state residents"

When BJP leader Devendra Fadnavis was asked about Munde's comments, he refused to respond. On Sunday, BJP state spokesperson Keshav Upadhaye also refused to comment. "No. there is no statement from the party nor from any of our leaders...," he said. Asked whether BIP leaders will stop saying the MVA will fall, Upadhaye

The state unit of the NCP, however, praised Munde for "stating facts". "We appreciate her statement. She has rightly slammed BJP leaders for repeatedly stating that the MVA will fall... Instead of playing the role of a strong opposition party, BIP is indulging in dirty politics...," said a NCP leader.

ANURADHA MASCARENHAS PUNE, OCTOBER 18

RESEARCHERS HAVE made a strong case for the use of Indian Academy of Paediatrics (IAP) charts to screen for metabolic risk in children. IAP 2015 charts (as against the WHO 2007 references) had a higher sensitivity in identifying metabolic risk and are likely to be more suitable in Indian children and adolescents, a multi-centric study has found.

The study, 'Predictive value of WHO vs IAP BMI charts for identification of metabolic risk in Indian children and adolescents', was published in the September issue of the peer-reviewed of Paediatric Endocrinology Metabolism.

The study was conducted among 1,418 healthy school-going children of age 9-18 years. The study's specific aims were to compare the prevalence of overweight/obesity and metabolic risk, using random blood glucose, blood pressure and waist circumference by the WHO 2007 versus the IAP 2015 references, and to assess the predictive value of the two growth references for identifying metabolic risk.

The WHO and IAP BMI for age charts estimated a prevalence of overweight/obese as 15.7 per cent and 19.1 per cent respectively. The IAP charts had better sensitivity and negative predictive value, while WHO charts fared better in positive predictive value. The prevalence of overweight/obesity as judged by IAP charts was higher and a higher percentage of children with waist circumference more than the 90th centile was classified as overweight/obese by IAP as against the WHO charts, researchers said. The difference in specificity

IAP charts to screen for metabolic risk

in children better than WHO: study was not statistically significant. As the IAP 2015 BMI for age charts use lower cut-offs than WHO charts (23kg/m 2 and 27kg/m 2 versus 25kg/m 2 and 30kg/m 2), they yield better sensitivity with drawback of higher number of false positives, Pune-based Dr Vaman Khadilkar told The Indian Express. Khadilkar had led a committee of experts that designed the IAP chart in 2015 and is one of the study authors.

WHO cut-offs have better positive predictive value but there are higher numbers of false negatives, leading to risk of missing evaluation in individuals at risk of development of metabolic syndrome by labelling them as having normal BMI.

The IAP growth chart committee recommends growth charts for height, weight and body mass index (BMI) for assessment of growth of 5-18 years old Indian children. This chart is updated every ten years. There are no updates on these WHO growth standard charts presently. But given the rising prevalence of obesity and metabolic syndrome (risk factors that could lead to heart disease and other health problems) in adolescents, assessing metabolic risk early is critical. BMI is recommended for diagnosis of obesity in children and adolescents. "Growth patterns differ amongst different populations, especially in children above the age of five years. This is due to nutritional, environmental, genetic factors and timing of puberty, which play a major role not only in the attainment of final height but also in the characteristics of the growth curve. So, it is necessary to have country-specific growth charts to monitor growth of children between 5 and 18 years of age," Khadilkar said.

Dr Anuradha Khadilkar, consultant paediatrician and deputy director of Hirabai Cowasji Jehangir Medical Research Institute, who is one of the study authors, told The Indian Express, "As Asians and in general Indians are at higher risk of development of metabolic syndrome and consequent cardiometabolic consequences due to the same, as compared to people of other ethnicities, it is apt to evaluate a greater number of at-risk children and begin an early intervention."

The researchers, who also include Dr Chirantap Oza, Dr Neha Kajale and Ketan Gondhalekar, said IAP 2015 may be preferred owing to increased prevalence of obesity and high risk of development of metabolic syndrome in Indians.
